SOME OLD TIME GAMES.

Many of the Present Day Sports Were Bor It is curious to note how some of the games of the early ages have been handed down to the present time. The game, for instance, known to most of us as odd and even was also a favorite with the young Egyptian, and many of the preserved in the British museum. There is also the game of drafts, which was est times. The poor children were content with draftsmen and boxes made of rough pieces of clay, but the richer ones usually had beautifully carved iron usually had beautifully carved iron headed draftsmen and boxes. The young Greeks, too, were provided with toys and games for their amusement. The toys were chiefly dolls made of baked clay, the arms and legs are known to us—Western Recorder, Louisville being jointed with string, and therefore movable. They had a favorite game called Chytriand, which has been preserved through many ages, and is now played by boys of today under the well known name of puss in the corner. In France the game is called quatre coins, or four corners. Both in the old game and in the modern version five players are required, one occupying each of the corners, while the fifth player stands in the middle. In ancient Greece he were an earthen pipkin on his head and was called pot: in France at the present day he is the mgaud, or simpleton.

So you see how carefully the character of the amusements and the playthings of the very early ages has been maintained in the toys and games in use today.-New-

It cured me in three days. I am all right to-day and would insist on every one who is afflicted with that terrible disease to use 4 50 Chamberlain's Pain Balm and get well at once." 50 cent bottles for sale by Z. Terrible Duel on Horseback. dozen veterans of the civil war the oth-20 00 er day in Bowling Green, Ky. A writer in the Democrat tells this story:

"I have read many stories," said one of the old soldiers, "of individual exhibitions of bravery during the war. but I witnessed a duel between two officers of high rank that had I read it I would have believed it the reproduction of imagination. "During the early days of the war, said the old warrior, "the Federals, who Nerve had already driven the Confederates from southern Kentucky, were much troubled down in Christian county by a Colonel Woodward, who, I believe, lived near Lafavette, in that county. A Mejor Brackett-I think he was from northern Ohio-undertook to suppress Woodward, but met with ignominious failure in his first attempt. He was deeply chagrined, but an opportunity finally came for him to show that he was no coward.

"At the head of a skirmishing party be was quietly marching down the road one day when suddenly he came upon a similar party of Confederates. The unexpected meeting threw both parties into confusion, and before either had a chance to form for a fight, Brackett ordered his men to remain quiet and rode forward. It was a remarkable course, and, I believe, without a parallel in the history of the war, but he challenged the commanding officer of the rebels to a personal conflict. "It happened that the Confederate officer was Major Valentine, whose home was in Memphis. He was one of Forrest's men, and had a reputation as MEMPHIS, VICKSBURG, NEW ORLEANS a man of aggressive personal daring. He was surprised at the unusual challenge, but he immediately accepted, and the two officers, in plain view of their commands, galloped toward each other with drawn sabers.

"They went at each other like knights of old, and a thrilling duel followed. The horses turned, charged and reared with wonderful rapidity. The sabers hissed viciously. Blood was drawn on both sides. The officers charged again. Brackett made a savage cut at Valentine, who dodged.

"The officers charged again. The Confederate officer made a backward 1 50 cut as he passed and the blade struck Brackett square across the back of the neck. His neck dropped to one side, he reeled and fell from his horse. They picked him up, but he was dead. The blow had broken his neck.

"He had proven his courage, but he had died in the attempt. They buried him by the roadside, and the two 20 00 forces withdrew without firing a shot. 20 00 I was with Valentine's force, and I 20 00 never witnessed a similar fight, and 15 00 hope never to do so."

"What's in a name?" Well, that de-3 00 pends. For instance, the name of 15 00 "Ayer" is sufficient guarantee that 18 00 Ayer's Sarsaparilla is a genuine, scien-18 00 tific blood-purifier, and not a sham, like so much that goes by the name of "sarsaparilla." Ayer's Sarsaparilla is
